A Day Of Experiential Learning

Direct experience transforms individuals and inspires action for positive social change.

Following the model of “Ver, Pensar, Actuar” -or See, Think, Act- we will seek to create dialogue as a way of solving problems, recognizing that we are all teachers and we are all learners. We all have something to bring to the table, regardless of education level, economic status, race, gender, or class. We will discover the value of the human experience as a learning tool.

Education for positive social transformation is an integrated learning model that embraces and works with the tension between theory and practice, reflection and action, and teacher/learner knowledge and new information.

Participating in this Day of Experiential Learning will lead us to reflect on and analyze the different points of view of the people living this reality. This experience will invite and inspire us to develop more critical thinking, and to join in the construction of a more just and caring society.

CAPACES Leadership Institute in Woodburn
Transportation will be provided

Saturday
January 24th
10-4 P.M.

Confirm your attendance by Friday, Jan. 16th
Lchavarria@oregonstate.edu

"Leadership should be born out of the understanding of the needs of those who would be affected by it." --Marian Anderson