As a student in this semester long program, you can take classes on Buddhist philosophy and history, all the while gaining insight into the day to day lives of Buddhist monks and nuns.

Classes are held on the grounds of Ka-Nying Shedrup Ling Monastery. Set in the bustling town of Boudhanath—just outside of the city of Kathmandu—this monastery and its environs are at the heart of Tibetan religious life in Nepal. You will study Buddhist Philosophy with traditionally trained monks, complemented by classes taught by western scholars. You will also be able to take courses on Buddhist history and Nepalese religion, and if you wish you will have the opportunity to study meditation with acclaimed meditation masters. But perhaps most importantly, you will be immersed in Tibetan Buddhist life, engaging directly with the daily realities of Tibetan Buddhism—an experience like no other in the world.

Unlike other programs in Nepal, this trip is organized by OSU and only available to OSU students. This guarantees that the credits you earn will transfer seamlessly and that you will continue to receive your financial aid.

FMI, contact Dr. Geoff Barstow at barstowg@oregonstate.edu