Philosophy

Philosophy is part of a long tradition of deep questioning surrounding the human condition, including the study of knowledge and reality, and how we ought to live our lives. Our program is committed to the teaching and study of philosophy as a discipline actively engaged in our world, offering alternatives to the ways we currently understand ourselves and our relation to nature and each other in our technologically complex, global economy.

We foster intellectual rigor, and the critical interpretive, analytical, and communicative skills necessary to support lives guided by ethical reflection and civic responsibility. At its core, the undergraduate major in Philosophy provides a broad education and the intellectual skills that are vital to success in many occupations and other areas of life. It also serves as a valuable background for further study in areas like law, public service, medicine, and many others.
