Psychology

Psychology is the scientific study of behavior and the mind. It seeks to understand the biological, psychological, and environmental factors that influence human thought and action. Psychology is a broad field with many sub-disciplines, including clinical, cognitive, developmental, and social psychology. The major in psychology at Umpqua Community College is designed to provide students with a strong foundation in the field and prepare them for careers in a variety of settings.

The psychology major at Umpqua Community College is a four-year program that requires a minimum of 180 credits for graduation. The major is divided into three main areas: Major Requirements, Baccalaureate Core, and Minor/Electives. The Major Requirements include a variety of psychology courses, including introductory, general, and specialized courses. The Baccalaureate Core consists of a set of general education courses that all students must complete. The Minor/Electives are chosen by the student and can be in any field. The program is designed to provide students with a strong foundation in the field and prepare them for careers in a variety of settings.
