

“The Eye of the Storm: Re-imagining Ethics for a Changing Planet.”

CONFIRMED PARTICIPANTS

Andrews Forest – September 31-October 2, 2011

- o J. Baird Callicott, philosophy, University of North Texas
- o Courtney Campbell, religious studies, Oregon State University
- o Madeline Cantwell, Orion magazine
- o Robin Morris Collin, sustainability law, Willamette University
- o Alison Hawthorne Deming, poet and essayist, Science and Other Poems
- o Kristie Dotson, philosophy, Michigan State University/Oregon State University
- o Jennifer Michael Hecht, author, The Happiness Myth
- o Robin Kimmerer, botany, author, Gathering Moss
- o Barry Lopez, author, Arctic Dreams
- o Katie McShane, philosophy, Colorado State University
- o Nalini Nadkarni, ecology, University of Utah
- o Michael P. Nelson, philosophy, Michigan State, co-editor, Moral Ground
- o Matt Nisbet, climate communications, George Mason University
- o Devon Pena, anthropology and Chicano Studies, University of Washington
- o Kim Stanley Robinson, author, Mars Trilogy
- o Libby Roderick, singer and songwriter, How Can Anyone?, University of Alaska
- o Allen Thompson, philosophy, co-editor, The Virtues of the Future
- o Kyle Powys Whyte, philosophy, Michigan State University/Oregon State University
- o Gretel van Wieren, religious studies and ecology, Michigan State University
- o Priscilla Ybarra, Latino/a Literature, University of North Texas
- o Jan Zwicky, philosophy and poet, Songs for Relinquishing the Earth

PARTICIPATING STAFF

- o Charles Goodrich, poet, Program Director, Spring Creek Project
- o Kathleen Dean Moore, philosopher, writer, Director, Spring Creek Project
- o Fred Swanson, forest ecologist, USFS, co-director, Long-Term Ecological Reflections
- o Harmony Paulsen, graduate student, Water Policy and Management, Spring Creek Intern